CHILDREN WITH SPECIAL NEEDS ARE GIFTS FROM GOD -IBIJOKE SANWO-OLU

The Lagos State Government has always been in the fore front in ensuring that children with special needs are included in the society following the enactment of the Lagos State Special People's Law which aims at protecting them irrespective of the degree of their challenges.

In celebrating these children, the Ministry of Education recently brought all the inclusive and special schools in the state as well as their parents and teachers together in an event held at Police College, Ikeja.

With the theme, The future is Accessible, the ministry seeks to increase awareness of gains to be derived from the integration of persons with disabilities in every aspect of political, social, economic and cultural life as they too have the capacity to contribute immensely to the development of every society.

Dr. Mrs Ibijoke Sanwo-Olu, First Lady of Lagos State who was the Guest of Honour promised to leverage on the good will that her office attracts by mobilizing public spirited individuals, corporate organisations and non-governmental organisations to assist with resources to further improve the well-being of special children in our state.

"I therefore urge all people with special needs to register with the Lagos State Office of Disability Affairs (LASODA). There is need for statistics to aid effective planning for the specific need of individuals and groups."

She also advised the parents of children with special needs not to see them as bad omen but people who are created specially by God to achieve specific purposes.

Bring them out and let us support them to live their life fullest, they are not destined to be beggars, they are capable of living independently if assisted to acquire requisite skills.

On her part, the honourable commissioner for education, Mrs Folasade Adefisayo affirms that qualitative education that includes digital literacy is key to equip children with special needs to attain a future of prosperity to enable them be enlightened and gainfully employed.

The Government runs 5 special schools, thirty –one inclusive education units at the primary education level and twelve inclusive secondary schools to provide education and vocational skills for children with special needs.

The high point of the celebration was the match-past by all the special schools in the state.

Publisher's Note

In his usually pragmatic style, Mr. Governor, Babajide Olusola Sanwo-Olu led his Commissioner for Education, Mrs Folasade Adefisayo and other senior officials of the Education Ministry as well as the State Universal Basic Education Board to a parley with the private sector stakeholders. Details of the discussion at the dialogue are well reported in this edition.

Education matter is never relegated to the background with the First Family of Lagos State. Mr. Governor's wife, Dr.(Mrs.) Ibijoke Sanwo-Olu was on hand to support children with special educational needs. At a forum where parents, special needs teachers as well as their pupils were brought together to celebrate them and to create awareness amongst the general public for their concerns, Mrs Sanwo-Olu lent her voice in support of their worthy cause. Read about it all here.

Hon. Wahab Alawiye-King, Executive Chairman of LASUBEB led his Board, Education Secretaries across the local government areas and other key stakeholders in the primary/basic education sub-sector to exchange ideas with a foremost educational management outfit from the USA, Performance Fact Inc for a capacity building exercise. The focus of the exercise was to consider strategies for transforming attainment levels amongst primary school pupils. Kolade Alabi, Chairman, Bariga LCDA thus far in this administration did enough in the improvement of educational infrastructure in his domain that Mr. Governor, the Deputy Governor, the Honourable Commissioner for Education all at the same time were in Bariga to commission the magnificent facilities erected by the Kolade-led LCDA. Stories and photographs are contained here.

TESCOM rolled out an effective media campaign to attract application for qualified individuals for teaching positions in the secondary schools. The endpoint has now been attained. New teachers are now on board. They were recently inducted with a charge to take on the challenges of their new career with boldness, courage and selflessness. The story is well reported here.

As always, activities of the six Education Districts in the past few months as well as other important landmark achievements in the education sector of Lagos State are well reported in this edition.

Enjoy it all.

ACT AS LOCO PARENTIS, YOU'RE IN THE BUSINESS OF MOULDING LIVES -ARIYO

The Governor Babajide led administration has made good his campaign promise of improving the standard of education in the state. Not only has the ministry of education got the lion share of the budget, the government recently recruited 1000 new teachers to the State Teaching Service which will strengthen the workforce of teachers in the post primary education. The newly recruited teachers are from different disciplines in education, they all went through training and were inducted recently at Nana Hall, Central Business District, Alausa, Ikeja.

Speaking at the induction ceremony, the Chairman, Teaching Service Commission (TESCOM), Mrs Olabisi Ariyo affirmed that the aim of the induction ceremony was to properly integrate the new appointees into the educational system of the state, having supported them with modern standard methodologies of teaching and learning so as to impact positively on the students.

She also charged them to live above board in discharging their responsibilities and must continue to act as loco parentis to the children not forgetting that they are in the business of moulding lives.

“You need to align yourselves to the education policy of this administration by engaging in continuous personal development in order to give the best to the system.” disclosed Ariyo

The Chairman House Committee on Education, Hon Oluyinka Ogundimu congratulated the inductees but charged them to justify their various qualification by making themselves conscious to their duties as watchmen noting that the civil service rule would be applied to any errant teacher.

Hon. Wahab Alawiye-King the SUBEB Executive Chairman admonished the new teachers that teaching had gone beyond the classroom knowledge but that they should be creative and dynamic.

The Permanent Secretary, Teaching Service Commission, Mrs. Toyin Awoseyi told the teachers to be ready to learn, unlearn and relearn during the course of their career.

WE WILL MAKE LEARNING ATTRACTIVE THROUGH DIGITIZATION -GOV. SANWO-OLU

With the training of over 4000 teachers in over 300 public primary schools across the state a recent programme by the Lagos State Government, Excellence in Child Education and Learning (EKO-EXCELL) has been described as a bold move in the reformation of education in Lagos State.

EKO-EXCELL programme is a key component of the Sanwo-Olu administration's education blueprint seeking to deploy technology to fundamentally transform the basic education template, thereby improving the outcome of teaching and learning.

Speaking at the graduation ceremony for the first set of teachers under the EKOEXCEL initiative held at the Blue Roof, Agidingbi, Ikeja, Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu reaffirmed his administration's plan to transform the state education sector and to increase government's investment for the good of the pupils.

The governor recalled that at the inception of his administration, “we identified three critical issues militating against quality education in Lagos State. They are the need to upgrade the teaching profession to promote knowledge transfer and co-create workable functional models for the profession thereby creating overwhelming support for learning outcomes; review the school curriculum such that it reflects current and future industry needs to positively influence and reshape the present educational system in the state; and upgrading school infrastructure.

“We resolved to solve these problems through combining innovative technology, scientifically based pedagogical approaches, effective training, support and closing the learning gap such that all school age children in Lagos State build a better and brighter future for themselves, their families and the teeming people of Lagos State. We resolved that this government will empower teachers in every local government and strengthen their capacity to deliver quality education to our children.”

He said at the end of the programme, over 14,000 primary school teachers would have benefited from the initiative, while over 500,000 pupils would have been positively impacted.

“As a responsible government, we will continue the massive investment in this sector, with the training and retraining of our teachers, making the sector more ICT compliant, exposing our teachers to international best practices, as well as ensuring that our schools become a destination for work and learning.”

“It is our view that we will deliver a radical, better learning outcomes for our future leaders as the EKOEXCEL initiative will provide our schools with the technology based up skills, scientific-proven pedagogical approaches and a complete 360 degree support system that will beacon across educational strides.”

AGUNSOYE EMPOWERS KOSOFE YOUTHS WITH ICT TRAINING AND EQUIPMENT

Information and Communication Technology (ICT) is the engine, driving the development of the economies of developed and developing nations in the 21st century. To ensure its impact is maximized in developing countries like Nigeria, it is imperative to train and empower youths, who account for over 60% of her population, on ICT and its application on daily basis.

Hon. Rotimi Agunsoye, a federal lawmaker representing Kosofe Federal Constituency at the House of Representatives, recently organized a programme to train and empower youths in Kosofe on ICT.

The federal law maker who is also the Chairman, House Committee of Sustainable Developments Goals (SDG), believes that youths are the leaders of tomorrow, and avers that 'they have to get themselves prepared for that tomorrow'.

He's convinced that 'if Nigeria must catch up with the rest of the globe in technological advancement, we must begin to break grounds in ICT' and "as such any move in this concerted effort, however little is a right step in the right direction".

Mrs. Larai Ibeh who represented National Human Rights Commission lauded the choice of ICT for the training, stressing the importance of ICT in today's world.

In order to encourage those trained to become entrepreneurs, they were each given a laptop, a printer and other accessories. The excited beneficiaries applauded the lawmaker and promised to make judicious use of the equipment they've been empowered with.

One of the beneficiaries, Mrs. Amirat Soyinka, highlights the importance of the training, noting that anyone with no computer knowledge, will have limited access to economic opportunities.

Another beneficiary, Mr. Adekunle Olorunfemi who is a printer, noted that the training will enhance his job.

While congratulating the beneficiaries, Hon. Agunsoye assures them of continued investment in human capacity to actualize full ICT potentials.

SUBEB COMMENCES FREE FEEDING PROGRAMME FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

In tandem with the Federal Government policy feeding program for primary school children, the administration of Governor Babajide Sanwo-Olu has championed the cause in the state through Lagos State Universal Basic Education Board (LASUBEB).

Pupils in the state's primary schools have been provided with feeding utensils for breakfast and lunch. The feeding programme started at the beginning of the year and primary school teachers have lauded the exercise. One teacher was noted to have hailed the exercise because school children have started turning up in their numbers and that they have experienced a population surge in public primary schools.

The Chairman, LASUBEB, Hon. Wahab Alawiye-King stated the feeding program is in furtherance of the initiative of the FG social reform agenda to promote social protection to ensure that pupils of public primary schools are catered for with one meal a day to aid concentration for better learning and reduce malnutrition, thereby producing eager learners in the schools. He assured that all food vendors have been inspected and have gone through health checks and are constantly being monitored for the quality of the food they provide to the learners.

QUALITY EDUCATION CURBS SOCIAL INJUSTICE

Social justice refers to equity in terms of the distribution of wealth, opportunities, and privileges within a society. It is a fundamental condition for people to coexist in peace and prosperity and the United Nations has dedicated February 20 annually to mark World Day of Social Justice. It is of a fact that globally, the gap between the rich and the poor is now much wider and according to the International Labor Organization (ILO), the poorest 20 percent of any given country needs an average of more than 11 years to earn what the richest earns in a year.

To stem the tide of social injustice, the future leaders of nations, industries, and society must be equipped with the knowledge required to curb social injustice. Hence, the management of Lagos State Education District 5 assembled students to commemorate World Social Justice Day with the theme: Closing the inequality gap to achieve social justice.

Revealing the correlation between gender equality and social justice, Mrs. Adeola Adedeji who read out the the speech of United Nations, Secretary General, Mr. Antonio Guterres affirms that the principle of social justice is upheld when gender equality, the rights of indigenous people and migrants are protected. She also said that social justice is achieved when barriers such as gender inequality, age, race, ethnicity, religion and culture among other prejudices are removed

The Tutor General/Permanent Secretary of Education District V, Mrs. Okelola Oludara asserts that one way to curb social injustice is by providing quality education for all, which will in turn breed equal economic opportunities and possession of the necessary skills to harness these opportunities. She enunciated the massive opportunities that Lagos State affords all comers and enjoined the students to take advantage of these.

It was heartwarming to watch students profess their understanding of Social Justice. They also staged songs and drama presentations to highlight the importance of social justice. Ijeolade Omotola, a student of Ojo Senior Grammar School understands it as 'bringing coexistence between people' and 'education has been used as a platform to bring coexistence between students'. Fisayomi Sorengbe from Lagos State Senior Model College, says 'the rule of law says that nobody is above the law, so everybody should be treated equally with regards to opportunities, privileges, and access'.

The United Nations believes that the pursuit of social justice for all will help promote development and human dignity.

ENGAGE IN REGULAR EXERCISE AND EAT HEALTHILY -ERINLE

Celebrating retired officers in the Education Districts is a way of showing appreciation to the senior citizens and a form of encouragement to those in service that their labour is not in vain.

Education District IV comprising of Apapa, Mainland and Surulere recently held her send-forth celebration for her retirees. The officers in their various shades of white were full of praises for the Lagos State Government for giving them the opportunity to serve in various capacities.

In her good will message, the Commissioner for Education, Mrs Folasade Adefisayo congratulated the retirees and advised them to actively engage themselves with other social activities noting that they are not actually retiring but they are just changing job.

The Tutor General/Permanent Secretary of the District, Mr. Olumide Erinle commended the retirees, having contributed their quota to the development of education in the state. He therefore admonished them to take care of their health by engaging in regular exercise and eating healthily.

One of the retirees, Mr Ajibade Orimoloye who retired as a director from Aje Comprehensive Senior High School Yaba thanked the state government for the opportunity to serve and advised those that are still in service to be hardworking and never place money first.

CURRICULUM NEEDS CONSTANT REVIEW -LASG

With the view to prepare students for the future of works in the ever-changing fast-paced technological era that the world is in today, the Lagos State Ministry of Education Curriculum Service Department organised a program with the aim of objectively reviewing the schemes of work for the various subjects offered by students in the Senior School Certificate Examinations.

The review of the schemes of work had in attendant subject teachers from various subject associations, directors and other stakeholders in the ministry. The Lagos State Commissioner of Education, Mrs Folasade Adefisayo

Mrs. Esther Adegbamigbe, Director, Curriculum Services Department during the Curriculum Review of Senior Secondary School Unified Schemes of Work

who was the lead reviewer highlighted the strengths and pitfalls of the Nigerian Curriculum noting that no curriculum can fix it all. She equally led the teachers to a brainstorming session where solutions to various challenges observed in the Nigerian curriculum were proffered.

Adefisayo noted the Nigerian curriculum is one of the best in the world but need to constantly reviewed in order to meet the challenges of the day. She also shared her experiences when she was a School Principal on how she always bring out the best in the curriculum.

Mrs, Esther Adegbamigbe, the Director Curriculum Services Department stated that the review program is a timely one and is one of the steps towards producing globally competitive students noting that, it is a way to adapting the 21st century skills to conventional teaching methods.

CLIMATE CHANGE -DEFINING CHALLENGE OF OUR TIME

- GUTERRES

All the secondary schools in Education District III recently converged at Lagos Business School Auditorium to have a simulated United Nations Assembly meeting with the sole aim of saving the planet from the impact of climate change.

The District collaborated with United Nations Information Centre (UNIC), Nigeria to hold the maiden edition of Lagos Secondary Schools Model United Nations (LASS-MUN) and all the countries that made up the UN were duly represented with their flags.

In his goodwill message, United Nations, Secretary General, Mr Antonio Guterres represented by United Nations Country Director, Mr Ronald Kayanja affirms that the world has achieved remarkable progress in recent years from increasing life expectancy to reducing child mortality and the number of people living in extreme poverty has been reduced by more than a billion.

“ But these gains face big risks. Climate Change is an existential threat and defining challenge of our time. You are the first generation to grow up in the shadow of climate change and the last who can prevent its worst consequences. The world needs your strong engagement to increase ambition to cut emissions and to hold leaders to account”.

The Tutor General/Permanent Secretary Education District III, Dr Olufolayimika Ayandele congratulated the delegates and referred to them as emerging leaders who have the rare privilege and opportunity to lend their voices to the most pressing issues of the 21st Century which are climate change and terrorism.
